TIGER MEDICINE.

A Sepret That Was Guarded by an Epst Indian Trainer.

The maharajah of Jammu had at one time the distinction of possessing the finest male tiger kept in captivity anywhere in the world. Percival Landon "Under the Sun" describes this beast and tells a strangely interesting story, which he declares is strictly true, in regard to it.

The tiger, a glorious brute of white and orange and black, with steel sinews and teeth like Sikh daggers, lay sulkily in his cage and growled. Nadaun, the attendant, spoke to the tiger, and as he did so the beast flung himself furiously against the flimsy bars. The keeper put his slender hand under his clothing and pulled out a little white bag.

Some years ago the tiger had found that the little back door of his den was open. The assistant of the little menagerie returned to find him loose in the garden and fled.

In half an hour Jammu's streets were as those of a dead city. No man hindered the tiger, and be glided silently down the main street of the town, a beautiful vision of orange and black atriped death. He reached the jungle co, Averill Building, City.
